THREE MORE CLOSED FOR GOOD.

The Number of Retired Dive-Keeper Increased to Eleven.

The Evening World's list of dives "closed for good" is increased today to eleven by the addition of Mr. John H. McGurk, Mr. John J.
McAleer and Mr. Paul McCarthy, of 253, 259 and 267 Bowers respectively. These three closed their saloons as well as their "back rooms" last night. With Mr. Louis Walters, of 285 Bowers, they yesterday afternoon promised President Meakin, of the Board of Excise, to keep their establishments entirely closed pending the disposition of their cases in the Court of General Sessions.

The other dives which have been closed are Mr. Jim Sullivan's "Parley's Hotel," at 78 Third avenue; Mr. Alfred Davis's "Excise Exchange," at 330 Bowers; Mr. Frank Stevenson's "Slide," at 157 Bleecker street; Mr. August Guidon's "French Hotel," at 235 Sullivan street; Mr. Carey Welch's "Hole in the Wall," at 117 Fourth avenue; Mr.
Tom Gould's basement dive, at Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street; and Mr. Dan Scribner's "Pickwick," at 1347 Broadway.

John McGurk, who holds the license for "The Slide," is to appear before the Board of Excise this afternoon to show cause if he can why that license should not be revoked.

"The Slide" had been entirely dismantled by Mr. Stevenson. It was not taken out with new pool tables, and is known as the "O. K.
Poolroom." No drinks are sold there.

McGurk will not appear alone before the Board. Joseph Gorman, of 3 First street; Joseph Smith, licensee of Charles Smith's place at 107 Bowers; and John J. Murphy, of 84 Bond street, will also try to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

Mr. Tom Gould's auction sale of his dive trappings has been initiated on a smaller scale by Mr. August Guidon. He dragged his old semicircular bar out in front of his "French Hotel" at 235 Sullivan street yesterday and chalked this announcement on its dive-bar-stained surface:

"For sale, cheap, $25.00.

Up to 6 o'clock I am had corralled this splendid bargain, and the antique curio was haunted inside again for fear some enterprising person might acquire possession of it during the night on still more reasonable terms.

Mr. John Walters ran his "Universe" at 72 University place in a wonderfully quiet manner last night. He appeared before the Board of Excise yesterday and succeeded in having his case adjourned until Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when he will have an opportunity to show cause, if he can, why his license should not be taken away.

Last night his palatial back room was again partly lit up, although there was no apparent reason for it, as not a woman was admitted to the place. The usual gang of harpies that has of late loitered around Walters's Thirteenth street door for some unexplained reason kept further down the street than usual, and disappeared into convenient doors at the first sight of a policeman.

Mr. Dan Scribner, proprietor of the "Pickwick," who was to have appeared before the Excise Board yesterday, is evidently lying low.
None of the excise officials were able to subpoena him, and the consideration of his case has therefore been postponed until he can be discovered.

Incidentally it may be mentioned that Mr.
Frank Stevenson is yet in hiding. The dive annex of his place at 78 West Third street was still closed last night, and the licensee, Mr. John Maher, has been notified to appear before the Board of Excise on Feb. 1.

Mr. Peter F. Matthews, who holds the license for Mr. Jim Sullivan's "Parley's Hotel" at 78 Third avenue, will also face the Commissioners on that day. The "hotel" was shut up tight last night.

Mr. "Honest" John Kelly, of 520 Sixth avenue, and Mr. John Gleason, Mr. Tom McGormick's licensee at 526 Sixth avenue, will be investigated by the Excise Board on Feb. 2, immediately granted by superior Commissioner Meakin, restraining the Board from passing on their cases before that time.

Mr. Ignatz Buttner and Mr. Louis Staeger still keep their "concert halls" at 294 and 255 Bowers wide open. There was the same old gang of harpies loitering at the tables, but the scarcity of victims was again apparent last night.

In passing, it may be remarked that since THE EVENING WORLD began its crusade the reputable concert halls along the Bowery are doing a better business than ever. People who are in search of innocent amusement and entertainment are now shunning the disreputable places since their true character has been exposed by this newspaper.

MR. TOM GOULD'S DIVE AUCTION.

The Last Knock-Down Taking Place in His Basement Den.

The sale at auction of the saloon and restaurant fixtures and the stock of liquors in Mr. Tom Gould's basement dive, at the southeast corner of Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street, was begun at 11:15 o'clock today.

Auctioneer Thomas Howe divided the hammer, and the first lot to find a purchaser was a mixed assortment of cupboards, which were knocked down for the magnificent sum of 10 cents each.

The other articles to be sold include forty two chairs, 200 chairs, the bars, lunch-counters, ice-boxes, cases of "wine" and a thousand or two of other things.

There were about two hundred people in the basement when the sale was begun. Mr. Gould and his ferocious mustaches and big diamonds were also on view. Tom frowned when 10 cents was bid and accepted for his cupboards.

WAS SHE LURED INTO A DIVE?

May Mortimer's Story of Mischap, Drugged Drink and Robbery.

In the crowd of prisoners arraigned before Justice Grady in the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning was a young woman who attracted unusual attention. Her efforts to reconcile her face from view and her appearance of respectability were in striking contrast to the looks and actions of the other female prisoners, most of whom were hardened offenders.

Justice Grady's discerning eye fell upon her and he accorded her the first hearing.

"You are charged with being drunk. Were you intoxicated?" he asked.

"The young woman turned a decidedly pretty face towards the justice. There was a rightened look in her blue eyes, and her only response was a sob.

Justice Grady spoke to her again in a more reassuring tone, and then the young woman said she was not drunk, but that she had been drugged and robbed and, to make complete the outrage, thrown into the street to be arrested for intoxication.

On the court docket she was entered as Mary Dooly, of 134 West Sixty-third street, but that was an unfortunate mistake, she said, Mary Dooly being the name of a friend.
She was stupified from the effects of a drugged drink. When taken to the station house she said the police looked her under the name of a letter addressed to Miss Dooly, which they found in her pocket.

Her real name was May Mortimer. She declined to give her address. According to the story told in court, she had been out shopping with Miss Dooly and had left her at Eightteenth street and Sixth avenue. They had agreed to meet again at Macy's.

At the corner of Fifteenth street and Sixth avenue she had slipped and fallen, tearing a rent in her skirt down its entire length. A man politely offered her assistance, and said he would take her to a place where she could have her skirt mended. He took her to the saloon kept by Sylvester & Wachman, at the northeast corner of Sixth avenue and Sixteenth street.

Miss Mortimer said she had informed the man that she did not visit saloons, but the stranger assured her that it was a respectable place kept by a friend, and that his wife could assist her in arranging her dress. Then she decided to go in.

They entered the back room, where another woman was seated. Miss Mortimer's companion insisted that she should have something to drink, and to oblige him she ordered seltzer and lemon. After drinking it, she said, she became dizzy, and when she attempted to rise she reeled.

She accused her companion of having drugged her, whereupon Sylvester, one of the proprietors, seized her by the arm and hurled her out of the door. On the sidewalk she staggered and fell, and policeman May came along and arrested her for drunkenness.

When she regained consciousness at the station-house she discovered that she had been robbed of her pocketbook containing $35.

Detective Hayes thereupon arrested Sylvester, but as she could not swear that he took her money he was discharged this morning.

Justice Grady said he would entertain a complaint of assault against Sylvester, whereupon Miss Mortimer exclaimed:

"Heaven's no! I've had disgrace enough."

Justice Grady thereupon discharged her.

As Miss Mortimer left the court-room she was met by her father and mother, for whom she had sent. Throwing herself in her mother's arms, she cried hysterically:

"Oh, mother, this will ruin us all!"

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Horses That Will Run for Purse at Guttenburg To-Day.

The programme at Guttenburg to-day does not show a very great improvement over those of last week. However, as it is next to impossible to make owners enter their horses to run over a track in the condition that Staten Island's course has been for the past few days, race-goers must be satisfied.

The card to-day has no features, and is rather uninteresting. The track will be hard and fast. The entries for the various events are as follows:

FOR HARRIS'S LIFE.

Ninth Day of His Trial on the Charge of Wife Murder.

No Doubt Remains that She Died from Poisoning.

Celebrated Medical Experts on the Witness Stand.

For nine days the people of the State of New York have been putting before a jury in general sessions evidence against Carlisle W.
Harris, the young, self-educated, bright, energetic, honest and pure winning medical student, who is on trial for the life. He is charged with having sent to his wife, Helen Harris, a small glass bottle containing a poisonous substance, which she had given her heart and hand to him in a secret marriage.

What have the nine days brought forth?

The prosecution has proven by Dr. Fowler, old and learned in his profession, that he was called to and treated the dying girl from midnight of Jan. 31, 1891, till her heart ceased to beat, eleven hours later, that he diagnosed her case as one of morphia poisoning and treated her for morphia poisoning.

Dr. Banner and Kerr, young men but in active practice, were summoned by Dr. Fowler to assist him in that long struggle with death, and they corroborated the other practitioners in every material particular.

Dr. Allen McLean Hamilton, who has practiced medicine for twenty-one years and won a world-wide fame as a physician and scientist, took up the embalmment body of the dead girl, and the writer selects him to win the opening event. Shotover may be second and Derango third.
